Staff and Students. Thursday was another great day at the SMS dig sites and across campus. What a great week it has been since the potential discovery of the 1940's crop duster and agricultural artifacts. The visiting scientists have thoroughly enjoyed exploring possibilities, discussing hypotheses and uncovering evidence with the SMS teachers and students. The active dig site has exhausted its exploratory options and will conclude today. The site is safe, secure and ready to be returned to SMS for use as needed. Throughout the week we have been able to have so many great discussions and investigations about a broad spectrum of topics. It has truly been a great week of discovery. During the day Friday you may see visiting scientist in classrooms, at the dig site and during lunch. In honor of the great contributions that SMS students and teachers have contributed during the week, the investigative scientists would like to honor SMS with a trophy and treat during your lunch time on Friday. Thank you for a great week!

All busses have arrived on time and all students should be in their 1st period class at this time.

Students, remember our Panther Pact: be Polite, Prepared, Productive and Safe!

Have a fabulous Friday!
